Power Macintosh 5400 and Remote Control (6/96)

Article Created: 05 June 1996

TOPIC -----

I just bought a Power Macintosh 5400/120 and I noticed it did not include a remote control. Was it supposed to be included? What can I do?

DISCUSSION -----

No, the remote control is not included with the Power Macintosh 5400/120. However, there are two other options available to you.

First, you can contact a local, Apple-authorized service provider and inquire about purchasing the remote control which is included with the Apple TV/Video System. The service part number is 922-0549. Service providers may not have service parts available.

You may also use any remote control which uses the Sony command set. This includes Sony TV remotes, and universal remotes which can be programmed with the Sony command set.
