TOPIC -----

If I am running System 7, can I share files, documents, or folders with a Macintosh running System 6?

DISCUSSION -----

Yes. To set up your Macintosh computer to share files, documents, or folders, follow the instructions on setting up file sharing in the Macintosh User's Guide or search for other articles on the subject. You can share folders with any Macintosh (from the 512k enhanced and up), the Apple II, and any MS-DOS computer that uses AppleShare workstation software. Apple II and MS-DOS computers require special software and, in some cases, hardware.
