LaserWriter Pro 810: No Limits on Downloading Fonts (5/94)

Article Created: 12 May 1994

TOPIC -----

The LaserWriter Pro 810 has a SCSI port for an external HD. Is there any network topology limitation to downloading fonts to that HD (can I download via Ethernet or LocalTalk)?

DISCUSSION -----

There are no "topological" limitations on downloading fonts to a hard drive attached to a LaserWriter Pro 810. We have verified this by downloading TrueType and Type 1 PostScript fonts to the hard drive using Ethernet and LocalTalk from the LaserWriter Utility software.

We haven't tried downloading fonts to the printer in the Windows or Unix environment, but there shouldn't be any problems with this.
